ATTORNEYS AND JUDGE INDULGE

Matters in the Calhoun Trial are Enlivened by Controversy Between Factions.

(Associatated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8.—A quarrel of unparalleled bitterness, involving Judge Lawlor and practically all the attorneys for the defense in the trial of Calhoun, enlivened the day which for the defense in the trial of Calhoun, enlivened the day which was otherwise devoted to the presentation of routine testimony. Hency instituted a dispute by charging that Earl Rogers had been smiling at a member of the jury over a remark made by the witness. There was an angry reply from J. J. Barrett, of the defense, who declared that the prosecution had unnecessarily prolonged the trial by the introduction of trivial matters. At this point Lawlor intervened, threatening to send Barrett to jail for intimating the court had admitted a trival matter. The court proceeded to state that the allowance had been made for Hency's tempermental infringments because of the fact that he was shot down in the court room a few weeks before the Calhoun trial opened. A. A. Moore and Lewis Byington assigned the remarks of Judge Lawlor as a serious error, to which an exception was taken.
